

Kelsey Johnson, has over 30 years of football officiating experience, working from pee wee through U-Sports.

He is currently the Referee-In-Chief of the Calgary FOA, which sees him liaison between the FOA and all the leagues it serves on any issue that may arise. Alongside his officiating he has built a strong sales career and is self-employed as a sales agent in the electrical industry since 2003.

A strong believer in community he served 2 terms as an elected councilor in the City of Chestermere, AB. In that period, he project managed the construction of a $9 Million emergency services building, brought the fire department from volunteer to full time, helped to settled a many decade long dispute between land owners and another government entity.

He was part of a group of people who built a local utility from conception to full operations eventually becoming chair of this for-profit utility corporations. He has served on over 20 community and business board of directors in all capacities but always as a very active participant.

Kelsey and his wife Nicole have two children Bryant an aspiring football coach and Carter an offensive lineman at the University of Calgary.